

TRADING IN COTTON MODERATELY ACTIVE

Market Shows a Little More Strength—Ginning Report Does Not Have Much Influence as Additional Factor.

New York, November 12.—The trading in cotton was moderately active throughout the week, with the market showing a little more strength, and prices on the whole averaging above the closing quotations of last week. At one time there was an extreme advance, early yesterday morning, of about 10 to 15 points over last Saturday's closing, in which December 5, 1911, and May 5, 1912, but there was a reaction during the last hour yesterday, on renewed Southern and local selling, which closed prices with a net gain of but 5 to 8 points, with December ending at 26, January 9.55, March 9.15, and May 9.25.

The covering of a line of about 100,000 bales of short cotton for one of the largest local operators, who has been very bearish for some time, was the feature of the trading, in connection with the increased buying by trade interests, and many Wall Street operators switching over to the bull side, owing to the very sharp upward movement in the stock market and the much better feeling prevailing over the industrial situation, from the character of the opinion handed down by the court in the American Tobacco Company case. Southern spot markets have been under less pressure from the improved demand for spot cotton than both American and Continental spinners.

Extreme Views on the Crop.
The Census Bureau's report on the ginning of the crop to November 1, which was announced before the opening of the market on Wednesday, while considered bearish, because it showed much the largest amount of cotton ginned for the period on record, did not have much influence as an additional market factor, for the chief reason that it was in line with the trade's expectations, and proved to have been discounted in the selling movement of the week. It shows 3,968,000 bales of the crop were ginned to November 1, against 7,340,000 bales last year, and 8,191,000 bales in 1908, the previous high record. The general belief is that this record ginning of the crop indicates a crop of approximately 15,000,000 bales. That is the opinion of most of the Southern and local traders and commission houses, who are still adhering to the bear side of the market, on the ground that more cotton has been produced than required by the world's spinners.

The extreme bears, especially those who have been predicting less than 5-cent cotton, is that the crop is heavily short, is that the crop is over 16,000,000 bales, and one of these firms issued a crop estimate yesterday to that effect. Neil Bros., of London, who estimate the crop for the British trade, however, figure it at about 13,000,000 bales, and the largest local operator, who thinks it will be nearer 14,500,000 bales. The trade will be surfeited from now on with mixed crop estimates of this character, in the effort to guess the crop estimate of the Agricultural Improved General Condition.

Reports from the dry goods trade centers are showing more improvement with the passage of each week, and it is believed that the violent recovery in the stock market the past week on the more favorable views on the railroad and industrial situation will broaden the demand for dry goods generally with the more seasonable weather now prevailing. The cotton, trade authorities agree that the market has not been as much revived as they had hoped, but in not a few sections much more than 50 per cent. of it has been gathered. Ginning, it is claimed, is not very far behind the picking, and a decided showing off in the output of the gins may be expected at any time. If there is a hint of this during the week, the market ought to be better, and the mills, therefore, soon be running on full time.

This is the first time for over two years that the mills have had such an opportunity to stock up with cheap cotton. The present price of about 9 to 9 1/2 cents for middling cotton compares with the average price of about 11 1/2 cents for the last two seasons' crops, which is a difference of nearly 25 per cent. With cotton under 9 cents there would be considerable discussion of its selling under the cost of production, and this of itself would attract heavier investment as well as speculative buying of the staple.

Big Receipts Cause Heaviness in Wheat.
As Result of Heavy Movement There Is Continued Liquidation and Near Pressure. Little Change in Corn.
New York, November 12.—There was a slightly weaker trend in domestic wheat markets early in the week, but all things considered the decline was inconsequential. There seemed to be sufficient news of heavy receipts to have warranted a much greater break. For one thing, the world's exports were bigger than expected, and consequently there was a large increase in the quantity on passage, 3,552,000 bushels, against 3,760,000 bushels a year ago. Notwithstanding this, Liverpool was comparatively steady, which was largely attributed to smaller offerings at slightly higher prices for forward shipments from Argentina, where the weather has been unfavorable, and the offset, however, by continued favorable reports from India and Russia.

Effect of Heavy Receipts.
The heaviness in our markets was largely chargeable to continued big receipts in the West, especially at spring wheat primary points on the sides of the border, and particularly at Winnipeg, where the arrivals were over twice as big as a year ago. They were 2.20 uncommonly heavy at Duluth. As a result of the big movement in the Northwest the big movement in the Northwest in the week ended on two, there was another large increase in the visible supply, 2,581,000 bushels, against 2,460,000 bushels a year ago. Markets in Europe were held down by a report that the material increase in the Russian wheat supply, 4,476,000 bushels, against 1,200,000 bushels a year ago. This was offset, however, by additional unfavorable reports from Argentina, where deterioration was caused by the recent frost. It is believed that the yield in some places will be lighter than previously estimated. Nevertheless, the exportable surplus in that country is estimated at 128,000,000 to 130,000,000 bushels.

Late Selling.
Late in the week wheat fell to a still lower level, although there were frequent rallies, and hence the additional net loss was unimportant. The downward drift was ascribed to continued unloading by the bear element, prompted by the continued heavy receipts in the Northwest, and hence it is anticipated that there will be no other large addition to the visible supply on Monday. Advice from Chicago stated that further large lots had been sold to millers throughout the country on a "special basis," but thus far the quantity shipped from that center was disappointing. It is believed, however, that next week's shipments will show enlargement. The country is coupled with reports of decreasing deliveries by spring wheat farmers here and in Europe, and many short sellers to cover on the break. It is generally agreed that an unusually large percentage of the spring wheat crop has already been marketed, and hence it is reasonable to

DECISION OF COURT CHEERING TO MARKET

New York, November 12.—Strength and activity were injected into the stock market last week by the formal approval of the plan of reorganization of the American Tobacco Company, by the United States Circuit Court. The buoyant upward bound of prices in response to the court's action indicated the acceptability of the plan to corporation interests in general. It was to be inferred that some fear of the action of the court restrained the effect of the plan on the stock market until the decision was announced. Apparently no misgivings were felt of the ultimate approval of the plan by the Supreme Court, thus giving the seal of a definite sanction for a means of existence of "big business."

It is in that light that the financial community interpreted the settlement of the tobacco suit. It was concluded that any existing industrial combination could bring itself into compliance with the law along the lines of the tobacco reorganization without losing its power of profitable operation. There was a disposition to assume a possible effect to the legal pursuit of combinations. In contrast to this extreme, there was approval in some quarters that the political contention

FIGURES ON GINNING WILL SWING MARKET

New Orleans, La., November 12.—The cotton market again will be concerned with figures on ginning this week as the present period in the census bureau schedule of reports ends Monday night. It will not be long after that before private bureau estimates of the amount ginned will be coming out and they probably will have considerable influence on the course of the market. The census report will be issued a week from Monday.

The time is now fast approaching when picking and ginning must fall off. In some sections the crop has been almost entirely gathered in, in not a few sections much more than 50 per cent. of it has been gathered. Ginning, it is claimed, is not very far behind the picking, and a decided showing off in the output of the gins may be expected at any time. If there is a hint of this during the week, the market ought to be better, and the mills, therefore, soon be running on full time.

Chesapeake Fair to Open Tuesday.
Suspended Last Week on Account of Rain—Fish Factories Have Fine Season.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lancaster, Pa., November 12.—The Chesapeake Agricultural Fair, which opened near Kilmarnock last Wednesday, had to suspend operations on Thursday and Friday on account of the rain. The managers announce that the fair will be resumed next Tuesday and Wednesday, and that all the schedules that were advertised for last week will be carried out. The exhibits of domestic and agricultural products are said to be the largest and best for many years, and the line of horses entered for the races is the largest and finest ever seen in the Northern Neck of Virginia. The colored people will hold their annual fair near Kilmarnock during the latter part of the week.

We Do Not Fix

The charge for our services as Executor—the law fixes it. For example, take an estate worth $100,000. Suppose $50,000.00 of it is in real estate, and $50,000.00 in personal property, such as money, bonds, stocks, notes, etc. The Executor would be allowed 5 per cent. on the personalty, or $2,500; nothing on the real estate, unless it was sold. If sold, 5 per cent. would be allowed.

One of the great advantages of naming this Company your Executor is, that you can go further and put your estate in Trust for your wife and children, and it costs nothing; our only compensation being 5 per cent. on the income. Nothing for making investments and re-investments, and nothing for final distribution. Supposing the income is $6,000.00 a year, our entire charges for management would be $300.00 a year.

CELEBRATED CASE AGAIN REVIVED

Motion to Set Aside Decree of United States Supreme Court.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Ashville, N. C., November 12.—Dating back to the year 1795, when Prince Marshall Talleyrand de Perigord, then visiting this country, interested himself in lands embracing 60,000 acres in Madison and Haywood counties, this State, the celebrated case of Eben Horsford et al. vs. J. Jackson Gudge et al., was revived yesterday in the United States District Court, when Judge James E. Boyd heard a motion to set aside a decree of the United States Supreme Court, issued twenty years ago.

The records presented bore historic value, in that they set forth that some time prior to 1794 North Carolina granted Stockley Donelson, a Scotsman, 60,000 acres of land in what is now Eastern Tennessee. Subsequently the land conveyed to John Love, who in turn passed it on to two Frenchmen named Gelstronne and L'Honniedieu. Their plans of development attracted the attention of Talleyrand, who came to the United States in 1790, and he invested with his two companions. Talleyrand returned to France in 1795, and it is stated that the estate went from bad to worse after the death of Gelstronne and L'Honniedieu. The title to the lands became clouded through years of litigation, which finally went to the Supreme Court of the United States, where a decree was issued which apparently divided up the lands among the rightful heirs. The question at issue is whether or not the Supreme Court's decree covered the entire acreage or only half thereof.

The record figuring in the case was formerly a professor at Harvard College, and Mr. Gudge is the father of Representative Gudge, of this State.
